

REFLECTION SHEET

Date of Session: 13th December 2017

Observer/Tutor: Non-Observed (Self-Reflection)

Strengths of session:

This session followed on from the classes investigation into typography, which was a popular subject; the engagement of the learners was very good. All achieved the learning objectives, where the outcome was a set of font type posters. A positive element, which strengthen the learners' participation with Fundamental British Values, was that a number of the posters were to be exhibited; to select the finals I got the class to vote for their favourites. Yay Democracy.

Areas of development:

- The visuals provided were only web-based, where they were projected onto the board; to get a greater appreciation of poster design, it may be good to get some examples printed.

What stood out today from the session?

The learners' energetic participation; they all engaged in visual research, experimentation and development, where the results clearly evidenced engagement.

How would you implement what you have learnt today into your own practice?

N/A

What was the hardest part of today's session?

N/A

How could I improve on my work in today's session?

Design my own materials to use as visual examples, perhaps a poster designed under a time restraint and one that has been developed over a prolonged period.